

Similar to vishing, fraudsters may send fraudulent text messages on mobile phones advising you of issues with your account in order to gain access to private personal and financial information.